

Connaught Rangers Association

Editorial: by Francis Higgins, Northern Representative, C.R.A.

Welcome to the winter edition of our new Connaught Rangers Association Journal. The Journal will hopefully be produced and posted to all our current members four times a year as part of the committee's commitment to keeping our membership informed of our activities. In the next edition I hope to include a list of events that members can attend to support the association and I would ask anyone who has information on any such events to contact me over the Xmas period. This issue carries news on the new formation of the Committee and its changing roles and responsibilities and the exciting plans to make our association even more representative for all our members. The coming year will be a busy one with two trips going out to Gallipoli and the Somme and hopefully a groundbreaking event in association with the German Volksbund in August as well as tours and events planned around the new committee meetings across Ireland. I do hope you enjoy this issue and I want to thank all those who sent in articles especially Jack Fallon CRA who's commitment to the Connaught's is legendary and who has been a great help in sourcing news and stories. On behalf of the Committee I would like to thank all our members for their support this year and their continuing support for the coming year. I have enclosed two membership forms and I would ask you to send your renewal to King House as quickly as possible in the New Year. The second form is enclosed for anyone who is interested in joining the association or perhaps even a Christmas present for someone you know who is interested! I hope you have a peaceful and pleasant Christmas and a prosperous New Year and I look forward to the coming year when our association will grow stronger in the memory of those men of long ago, and who still are sacrificing their peace and prosperity in foreign fields so we can live in harmony and freedom.

CONNAUGHT'S AND UDR HOME COUNTIES ASSOCIATION JOINT TRIP TO THE SOMME 2009

On what we hope to be an annual event CRA John McDonald is organising another trip to the Somme in Summer 2009. Previous editions of the Journal have carried the success of last years trip and John hopes to improve upon the schedule this year with a new engine in Maisie the Landrover. John hopes to split the trip into two locations so we can cover Verdun whilst still meeting our commitments on the 1st of July at the Ulster Tower. Below is the initial itinerary with the final draft in the next edition. To book a place please contact me at the address at the back of the Journal. Places must be reserved by a deposit of £100 with a final balance to be paid in June 2009 prior to the trip. The final cost should be around £250 but you book and pay for your own flight to Stansted. Still good value thought eh!

King House Service of Remembrance 2008

The annual ceremony of remembrance was held at King House on Sunday the 9th of November. The moving ceremony was once again well supported with over eighty people and members in attendance. Once again the wreaths were laid by the children of our members including Willie Beirne's daughter Ellie who laid a wreath on behalf of the Beirne family remembering five family members who died in WW1; brothers, Michael, Frank, Thomas and John Wynne and Great Granduncle Joseph Higgins. The children were accompanied by Patrick

McHugh MBE to remember all those who made the ultimate sacrifice for freedom and peace. CRA Danny Tiernan offered up a cross of remembrance on behalf of his family and be- Dermot Kelly laid a wreath on behalf of the Association membership. The day was particularly poignant in the reading of the role of remembrance by Oliver Fallon ending with the latest casualties in Iraq and Afghanistan. It was a sobering thought that whilst we stood there to honour the men of the Connaught's many years ago, Irish soldiers are locked in heavy fighting in countries once garrisoned by those same Connaught Rangers and on battlefields once covered in their blood and dead. The service and prayers were lead by Father Ian Kennedy and Canon Swan and the Irish Defence Forces provided the bugler for the ceremony. Our standard bearer Gary Egan carried our association flag accompanied by a colour escort of Willie Beirne and Dermot Davit and the party association was presented with a special piece of craftsmanship by local artist Jim Chapman who hand carved a regimental cap badge. The artwork was formally presented to association president Patrick McHugh on the steps of King House by the artist and the work will be presented and hung in the association's museum by our new curator and archivist Oliver Fallon. CRA Michael Moyles presented Patrick with a framed history of his grandfather's history

Hugh Farrell with his excellent photographic exhibition

The association was honoured to host a photographic exhibition by Hugh Farrell whose interest in Irish military history was evident in the professionalism of his work. Tom Gunn CRA presented the museum with a field stove and Connaught Rangers artefacts. Hugh also presented the association with a picture of the Royal Irish Regiment at Connolly Barracks, Longford in 1915 before they were virtually decimated at Gallipoli. The

Loughrea Service of Remembrance 2008

CRA's Joe Loughnane and Colman Shaughnessy took part and organized the Loughrea Service of Remembrance and they have spoken to all concerned with Remembrance Day and all the feedback was very positive. They expressed their sorrow for all those who missed the ceremony and would wish that better representation from the association will be forthcoming for next year's ceremony. What follows is Joe and Colman's report on the day:

The presence of the U.N. Veterans did not go unnoticed and the photograph was on the STAR on Monday. Joe and I did not know the we had our day on the 40th. anniversary of the Niemba Ambush, and present were Congo Veteran Soldiers of that faithful day for the Irish Army and UN.

The assistance and support of James Regan will be forever remembered in the placement of our Memorial Stone , which will remain a focus point for years to come.

Many of you may not have known the man who laid the wreath ----- Michael McCormack suffered greatly from active service to the U.S. Army in Korea.

In addition to yourselves, we would like to thank- Loughrea Town Councilors, Loughrea and Galway County Council Staff, The Choirs (Abbey and Cathedral), the Garda Síochana, The Fire Brigade, The Lions Club, The Loughrea Chamber of Commerce, O'Dea's Hotel , Galway Heritage – and to all those who attended.

Sadly, I must now tell you that "My FOREVER FRIEND" passed away on Monday morning. Mick Nutley RIP. was nature's gentleman – a man of great knowledge. He worked with British Transport in Richmond, London and his late wife nursed the injured soldiers of past wars at the "Star and Garter Home" in Richmond Hill. In Ireland, Mick was on the Army Rifle Team and was a member of ONE of the Army Reserves and a member of the Connaught Rangers. We fished together and we always went to Boyle for the 11th. November "To Remember". To Mick – the bed of heaven to him – I will sincerely miss his company. He was proud to read the prayers on last Saturday. Our sincere thanks.

Dermot the Webmaster Does it Again!

Once again Dermot Kelly our Webmaster has come up trumps! Dermot will be introducing a new service to all members of automated email with a personalized Connaught's address. Dermot will also be setting up web chat and a new chat forum along with many new features (including a Christmas tree with lights so Dermot's taste hasn't improved much then,) in the coming weeks so check out the new look website for details. Dermot has also redesigned our membership form to include your personal email so we will also be improving our electronic service to our membership in 2009—2010.

In a Corner of a Foreign Field

Sometimes little bits of forgotten military history turns up at unexpected places and lead to new areas of study and understanding. That's what happened to me recently in Poland when I discovered the grave of a Connaught in Posnan whilst taking part in an International shooting competition thanks to Oliver Fallon. The Connaught, 5991 Ranger P. Corcoran (Pte) died in captivity on the 7th September 1918 in a German prison camp. Ranger Corcoran lies with over a hundred of his comrades in and British war cemetery in formally occupied Poland. Posnan was occupied by the Germans in WW1, WW2 (and renamed Posen,) then the Russians during the Cold War. What made this find incredible was I have been taking part in these competitions for a number of years now and passed this cemetery a number of times without even suspecting the stories hidden within. The British section of the cemetery is atypical of Commonwealth sites with tended graves and landscaped graves but it was the monuments that surrounded the British site that astounded me and my colleagues (I am part of a shooting team made up of Polish and Irish/British ex-servicemen called the Polish-Irish Rangers!) The monuments were erected to the thousands of Poles who were executed by the Nazis during WW2 some were tortured with hundreds burnt to death by the Gestapo. What really struck me was the row upon row of Soviet soldiers graves that are now forgotten due to the end of the Cold War and the withdrawal of the Communist forces from Poland after the formation of the New Russian state. These graves were once venerated but now are quietly moulding due to the changing political map of Europe and it reminded me of the story of the Irish after WW1 and WW2. I should be going back to Posnan next year (the Polish-Irish Rangers came third this year after the Russian Spetsnaz and the Polish Grom,) and if I do I will bring a cross of remembrance for ranger Corcoran and place it there on behalf of you all. We must all remember that it was not just the front line casualties that feature in the official histories and narratives that died. It was also the many, many other men and women whose passing is still obscured with the fog of war and if we can mark their sacrifice but once, we can go a little way to honour them.

Membership News

In order to streamline our membership services and provide more up to date news for our members the membership procedures are to be modified for the incoming year. As always members will receive confirmation of the renewal or success of their membership along with a receipt for any dues paid but the stamping of membership cards will not be necessary. Anyone who has a membership card can retain it for reference as membership details will now be held in a secure database so members email details can also be accessed by the committee for better communication. In a new service all members can have their own Connaught Rangers email address as part of their membership and more details about this fantastic new service can be found on our website thanks to CRA Dermot Kelly. Due to the changes in our procedures there has been a slight delay in sending up confirmations of membership but we would hope to have this issue resolved by the time you read this with the new system implemented from January 2009.

Don't mention Zee War!

Whilst at Posnan my team were up against the German Volksbund who's representative is Fallschirmjäger Hauptmann Markus Will. This organisation is an association whose purpose is to remember the German war dead made up of mostly ex-soldiers and reservists. The Volksbund team had volunteered to hand excavate a number of German dead in their own time and successfully found and reinterred ten German soldiers from the Great War before taking part in the competition which was the excuse they gave for us beating them into third place! As in all such occasions the social aspect brought together the soldiers of many, many nations and of course the Irish kept up their reputation as hosts and it was due to this chance meeting that the Volkbund agreed to participate in a groundbreaking event in Ireland next year. The group expressed a wish to mark the German graves at Glencree and to also mark the Irish dead at Glasnevin and the mistaken bombing raid at Duleek in 1941. The group will then travel to Belfast to tour the sites of the raids of Easter 1941 that seen the death of Christy Grimes and his wife. If the group can gain the leave necessary (some are on active service in Iraq) the tour should occur around August next year and all association members will be invited to each event. I will keep you posted on events. CRA Francis Higgins

New Connaught Rangers Committee 2008-09

The association has changed the makeup and responsibilities of Committee members. This was due to the changing dynamics of the association and a need to respond better to an increasing membership from across the islands of Britain and Ireland. As a consequence some members stood down and their responsibilities were combined to streamline the committee. The new committee would like to thank ex Committee members, Dot Callary, Francie Geelan and Danny Tiernan for all their work over the years and hope they play a full part in the association as ordinary members over the coming year. The committee's construction is laid out below with members either dedicated to certain roles or serving as ADC's to be tasked to undertake certain roles as and when needed. A major change in the committee from this point on will be the locations and timings of the meetings once held exclusively in Boyle. In order to reflect the changing and increasing membership the committee will now meet four times a year in different locations across Ireland. We would also hope to organise a tour or event at each meeting that all members can participate in and more details will follow as and when I get them.

An Event in History

The end of the Great War is just within living memory, but the physical scars of this conflict are still with us, ninety years after the Armistice silenced the guns on the Western Front. Like most reading this, you will probably remember the old men who would gather in small groups in our cities, towns and villages to speak in muffled tones amongst themselves. You will remember them, as your neighbours', family friends', and members of your own family', and for those who did not return, there were always those left behind, who like the veterans' said little or nothing of their personal experiences', suffering or loss, and if they did speak, said little. As we are all aware, the suffering and anguish caused by the Great War was further compounded in Ireland, through the social and political changes', effected through the war of independence, civil war, and subsequent partition of the state. For those who had fought in the recent conflict worse was to come still, for with the changing political landscape, came the disbandment of the five old Irish Regiments in 1922.

John McDonald with the Old Comrades this year.

It must however be remembered, that there could have been one more disbandment in 1922, Had it not been for the spirit of co-operation and comradeship between Irish regiments of the line. The Royal Irish Fusiliers who recruited primarily from the counties of Armagh, Cavan and Monaghan were staring disbandment in the face. In a gesture of support, the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers gave their second battalion to the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Staving off disbandment, and preserving the regiment, its' history and traditions' for future generations.

So it was on the ninetieth anniversary of the 1918 Armistice that I found myself on Horse Guards Parade preparing to continue this tradition of co-operation between Irish regiments'. Parading with the Combined Irish Regiments Old Comrades Association, as a member of the Connaught Rangers Association. Those who know me will know that I am also the organiser of the London and Home Counties Group of the Regimental Association of the Ulster Defence Regiment CGC. However as a child I had pestered my Grandmother to the point where I found out that one of her cousins Charles (Charlie) McNally had fought and died serving with the Connaught Rangers. For myself it has allowed me to examine an element of my own identity, it has rewarded me and my small group with friendships I never thought possible, and only recently, I have been afforded the opportunity to correspond with a distant relative who read about the recent UDR/Connaught Rangers Association tour to France and Flanders and decided to write to me through the UDR Association. Ninety years after the 1918 Armistice I found myself in Whitehall preparing to march past the Cenotaph, in my hand a wreath with the Connaught Rangers cap badge and a note attached that simply read 'In memory of those men of the Connaught Rangers 88th and 94th of foot who fell in the service of the Crown'. During the two minutes silence I thought of the men, or should I say boys', I could recall from the UDR, and then I thought of Charlie McNally and the sacrifice made by him and many other Irish soldiers. In 2008 a thirty eight year old veteran of one conflict handed over a wreath for a Regiment long gone to be placed at the foot of the Cenotaph, brought there by the sacrifice of another thirty eight year old who went before him. Regiments' die because they are allowed to be forgotten, because of apathy or through ignorance, but as I walked away from the ranks of the Combined Irish Regiments Old Comrades Association across Horse Guards Parade, I met a fellow member of the UDR Association, stopping for a chat he asked me about my dress, and after explaining myself, he replied that on one of his first trips to London he had met two feisty old men marching off the parade with walking sticks in hand. These men like me had paraded with the CIROCA but as former members of the Connaught Rangers, and for a moment through my UDR colleague the footsteps of these old men could be heard again as the Connaught Rangers came to life on Horse-guard's.

I am grateful, and honoured to have been given the opportunity to represent the Connaught Rangers (Association). I hope now that in June of 2009 we will see Connaught's taking their place once more in the ranks of the Combined Irish Regiments Old Comrades Association parade in Whitehall continuing to bring the regiment back to life, or should I say more importantly the memory of those two old men and what they represented.

Mayo Peace Park

Members of the Connaught Rangers Association joined a number of other associations along with dignitaries from across the globe to mark the official opening of the Mayo Peace Park in October. Association members from across Britain and Ireland paraded through Castlebar to take part in a service of remembrance at the new memorial and to hear a number of speeches culminating with an address by the President of Ireland Mary McAleese. The memorial was dedicated to those Irish who died in a number of conflicts including WW1, WW2 Korea and Vietnam. Once again CRA Gary Egan our standard bearer was in attendance with CRA Willie Beirne in support. Willie also laid a wreath on behalf of the association as part of the ceremony. In the evening a dinner was held to mark the occasion and the committee was represented by CRA Francis Higgins. The committee would like to thank Michael Feeney and his committee for inviting us to take part in such a important occasion and we would like to congratulate all those who helped create such an incredible monument to the fallen including the Connaught's memorial.

On the march at Castlebar with Jack Fallon

Castlebar Tour

The day after the ceremony I had the pleasure of having a private tour of Castlebar graveyard by Mayo Peace Park committee member and Treasurer Ernie Sweeney. Although busy, Ernie took me on a whistle-stop tour of the graves including the Connaught's quietly resting in various locations. Ernie's enthusiasm seeped into every graveyard story he told and he dedication to promoting the history of all those who lie in and around Mayo was clear including the French of 1798. Ernie's tour concluded after we met up with Irish Guards who were returning home and wished to swop blackthorn sticks as mementoes at the memorial with old comrades. A grave that really struck me was that of Ranger Pte John Roache D.C.M. I had read the story of John in the excellent book produced the Mayo group at the dinner the night before and the pictures of the proud old man with his hard won medal was fresh in my mind as I stood at his grave. Without Micheal Feeney, Ernie, Donal and all the committee, men like Connaught Ranger Roache would be just another hushed story in the corner of a room rather than a deserved place in history.

Ernie Sweeney at DCM Roache's Grave

CRA Jack Fallon's Corner

Jack Fallon has kindly researched the following poem for Christmas. When we all sit down to the food and usual festivities at this time we must also remember those who's illness or fear lead to a blindfold, a cigarette a firing squad and a lonely grave. All gave some, some gave all, all must be remembered.

*At Carnoy camp the Inniskillings were resting
Near Albert's framed spire with the leaning angel,
Heavy smell of leather, socks and cigarettes fouling the air;
Private Robert Hope, alias Hipple, lay stiffened in fright
For his summons to front-line duty was imminent.*

*And a strange thing happened en route to the front line
When the roll call was taken Hope had mysteriously vanished,
For of all the breaches of discipline desertion was the gravest.
Months later, two military police patrolling the street
Entering a derelict house found the deserter fast asleep.*

*'Come down to shop for my captain,' he pleaded
For deserting His Majesty's service hope was arrested
And while his court martial slowly proceeded
The battle of Messines was claiming lives of Irish heroes
The 16th Irish, the 36th Ulster fought united together.*

*19 mines of hellish dynamite rocked the Germans
The explosions were heard in Paris and London.
Right through the smoke-filled air the gallant Irish charged
Through to capture the high village of Wyttschaete. Said Haig:
'The operations today were the most successful yet undertaken.'*

*Absent from it all was the wretched Robert
In detention awaiting his trail: he thought of His service at the Somme-two years of shot and shell and liquid mud
Yet at his trail evidence of character was not even heard.
The faint hope was that in the death sentence to be commuted.*

*Seated in his tent Commander Haig was uncompromising
Back came Robert's file to the officer in charge
Sentence 'confirmed' it succinctly said it neat handwriting.
On 5 July, 1917 as day was breaking, blindfold and forlorn,
A rope tied both his wrists to a post.*

*As he thought of his home and the lush fields of Fermanagh
Shots rang out breaking the morning silence
Ending his life, an example to the men of his battalion
And Robert Hope, alias Hipple, aged 23, joins the twenty seven,
All Irish, cruelly executed at dawn.*

*'I could not look on death which being known,
Men led me to him blindfold him and alone'*

A Personal Message

At the Annual general Meeting I was honoured to be nominated successfully to become the General Secretary of the Connaught Rangers Association for the coming year. I will do all in my power to represent each and every member of this proud association to the best of my abilities. As an ex RIR Soldier I am truly humbled by your faith in my work and I give all that I can give to do you all proud. I will however state my belief that this association is to honour the men of the Connaught Rangers who fought in many, many battles across the globe. It is my pledge to you all that I cannot let their memories or courage be used by others to suit their own personal or political ends or agendas. The Connaught Rangers fought with honour, they gave up their British Colours with honour, they deserve to be remembered with honour.

I truly wish all our members a peaceful and happy Christmas and a successful New Year, but please do remember all those who paid with their lives for this privilege and whose still paying that price in some forgotten field at this very moment today.
